Think of all the times when you needed a friend some-one you could de-pend on when things weren't go-ing right.

It was nice to know that some-bod-y showed con-cern some-one you could turn to to make the burd-en light.

And when you were young wasn't someone always there; someone who always cared enough to calm you when you cried?
Ev’ryone knows someone who needs a helping hand. Some love and understanding builds dignity and pride.

Love’s the gift we all have plenty of to share around.

It's the gift no one can take from you, it must be given freely, if at all. And the love that you get in return is more than you'd imagine.
