HINE

21 – 25 June

Once upon a time I was told that I was divine. Once upon a time I believed I was divine. Now I'm not so sure.

HINE dances the veil between our divinity and our human reality. HINE reclaims the sacredness of women through ceremony, dance, and waiata. HINE seeks to activate te mana o te wahine, celebrating te whare tangata by weaving together sacred stories and sacred rites.

In reclaiming our sacredness as women we are restoring the balance. We invite you to take a journey with us, and navigate the tides of womanhood together.

Created by Whetu and Komako Silver in collaboration with whānau.

Closing night has a pre-show Wāhine Toa Hui at 2pm.
